WE HAD A GREAT THANKSGIVING WITH YOU!

WAYS TO GIVE THIS HOLIDAY

- Check your belongings. Do you have two of something? Donate any unneeded spares.
- Take advantage of holiday BOGO sales at the grocery store and score the freebies for our Can You Care Holiday food drive.
- Invite someone over and cook a meal for them... or make them a mean cup of hot cocoa.
- Call someone and spend 15 minutes just talking and catching up.

Parents: thank you for making our spaghetti dinner such a success. Special thanks goes to Donna Pulito (executive chef) and Charlotte Parker (sous chef) for all of their hard work!

“The final forming of a person's character lies in their own hands.”

WHAT IS THE BARTON DYSLEXIA SEMINAR?

The DePaul School is thrilled to host a seminar featuring Susan Barton, an internationally-recognized dyslexia expert. Susan works with parents of dyslexic children, and she invented the Barton Reading and Spelling System, which has represented a turning point in the educational experiences of countless students. This seminar is packed with incredibly useful information for parents, grandparents, and educators.

Registration is open now, and the seminar is free! We'll have it at the Jacksonville Marriott, 4670 Salisbury Rd. on Friday, January 8, 2016 at 5:30 PM. To RSVP, visit www.DePaulSchool.EventBrite.com.

Note: Susan's seminar is for grownups. Childcare will not be provided, so please make arrangements for your children.

DEPAUL'S HOLIDAY CAN YOU CARE FOOD DRIVE

There's nothing like a good buy-one-get-one-free sale at the market. (Okay, fresh doughnuts are awesome too, but we digress.)

This December, DePaul is giving back to the community with a holiday canned food drive.

From now until December 11, have your child bring a new can or four of the good soups, stews, lean meats (tuna and salmon), vegetables, fruits, beans, and yes, we'll take peanut butter. A simple guideline is to donate the kinds of foods you'd feed your own family.

We will pack it all up and stock our local food bank with your donations, so our friends and neighbors will enjoy delicious, nourishing meals this Christmas, too.
