RSVP FOR THE BARTON DYSLEXIA WORKSHOP

A few seats are still left!

DePaul is thrilled to host Susan Barton, an internationally-recognized dyslexia expert, on January 8. Susan works with parents of dyslexic children, and she invented the Barton Reading and Spelling System.

This night will be packed with helpful information for parents, grandparents, and educators.

Registration is open! This free event is at the Jacksonville Marriott, 4670 Salisbury Rd. on Friday, January 8, 2016 at 5:30 PM.

To RSVP, visit www.DePaulSchool.EventBrite.com now.

Note: Susan's seminar is for grownups. Childcare will not be provided, so please make arrangements for your children.

LIBRARY VOLUNTEERS

Our DePaul library is almost up and running! Now that students can check out books, we need a team of volunteers to help us organize the bookshelves in January.

If you're interested, talk to Mrs. Unthank or Mrs. Parker in the office. They will add you to the team!

UP NEXT: OUR DECEMBER 15 HOLIDAY PROGRAM

For photos, videos, news, and information

www.facebook.com/depaulschool

DePaul families are invited to the auditorium at 3:15 PM December 15 for a variety show featuring DePaul students and staff doing comedy, songs, dancing, skits, and more.

We'll have cake and punch afterward in the cafeteria. The next day is the last day of school before Winter Break!

DEPAUL'S HOLIDAY CAN YOU CARE FOOD DRIVE

From now to December 11, have your student bring cans of soup, stew, lean meat (tuna and salmon), vegetables, fruit, or beans. (Yes, we take peanut butter.) A simple guideline: donate foods you'd feed your family. We'll pack it up, stock the community food bank, and fill hungry tummies with good eats this Christmas. Thank you!
